

The beauty and breadth of Paola Lenti's new Eres outdoor furnishings collection is astonishing enough. But the added allure is they're made with 100-percent sustainable materials like hemp, bamboo, raffia, igusa grass, and abaca. $1,760–$16,000; paolalenti.it

An update of Herman Miller's best-selling Aeron chair now contains between .5 and 2.5 pounds of plastic per chair, the equivalent of 23–114 plastic water bottles. The company estimates it can divert over 150 tons of plastic from the oceans per year. From $1,795; store. hermanmiller.com

British interiors company House of Hackney has debuted paints that contain low VOC levels. They arrive in recyclable tins with an FSC-certified wood stirrer made from byproducts that otherwise would have been thrown away. From $104; houseofhackney.com

Wool has been a sustainable material since ancient times. Now, Revival Atelier is distributing pillows designed by Istanbul-based Handan Özcan. They're plant-dyed and handwoven by Turkish artisans (does not include insert). $135; revivalrugs.com